TUESDAY 15th JULY 1862.

Inauguration of San Martin's Statue

The war of Independence is the most memorable epoch in the history of South America: its struggles and reverses called forth all the energies of the patriot leaders, while its ultimate triumph marked a new order of things throughout the continent. Few of the great battles of the time were fought in the Argentine Confederation, and Ireland lent more swords to the rectification of Liberty, than either Buenos Ayres or Tucuman. Simon Bolivar left but a moiety of glory to be shared among the associate heroes; hence San Martin is but little known out of the immediate scene of his exploits. O'Higgins, Miller and O'Brien in Chili, Cochrane in Peru, O'Connor in Bolivia, Moran in New Granada, all distinguished themselves in the same manner, but their names are as little known in this city as that of Belgrano is in Dublin.

Yet the triumph of the great cause is a patrimony common to all Hispano American republics, and Buenos Ayres has testified her gratitude to the parent-fathers, in erecting a splendid monument to her own valiant soldier, who occupies an honorable place in the Pantheon of Fame. The hero of Maypu and Chacabuco contributed, in an eminent degree, to the emancipation from the Spanish yoke; but like the Liberator, Bolivar, he was rewarded with ingratitude, and banished his native country. During a wearisome old age, he had the misery to see his efforts for freedom rendered profitless; and, dying on a foreign shore, he had no glimpse of the new day which was to dawn on La Plata, when his spirit had basked in the sunshine of Eternity.

Sunday, July 13th, was fixed by the Government for the inauguration of the colossal equestrian figure which is destined to commemorate the Argentine protector-in-fain. The day was very unpleasant, from excessive cold and blinding volumes of dust; yet such interest was awakened by this tardy testimonial to the hero of Independence, that the Plaza Marto was crowded with an immense assemblage of spectators. The fair sex, with accustomed reverence for warlike celebrities, mustered in strong numbers, and lent an attraction to the scene, which even seated for the absence of better arrangements and finer weather. The hour appointed was 1 p.m, but the President and Ministers must have arrived some hour earlier, for when we reached the Plaza Marto the statue was already uncovered. A cordon of artillery was drawn around the statue, at the foot of which was a small platform in the centre were General Mitre, Dr. Costa, General Gelly & other dignitaries who were surrounded by a few well dressed civilians & a crowd of little boys. We could not get admission to the platform, where the place, which in other countries is assigned to the Press, was held up by noisy urchins. Tar was a bad arrangement for, whereas we would have sent the speeches of the orators, on this memorable occasion, flying to the four winds of heaven, to be reeded in Europe and the United States, the little boys, so favored by mistake, prevented even the nearest bystanders from hearing a syllable of the enthusiastic discourses.

General Mitre made a fine oration (we suppose), and was followed by a military gentleman, who waved his sword in the air, suiting his action to some brilliant apostrophe, but it was all dumbshow. After a delay of some minutes, the gentlemen descended the platform, the band struck up a martial strain, the veterans of Independence formed under their historic banner which was borne by Colonel Conling, the procession was formed, and all marched off to the Retiro barrack, where (we suspect) a collation was provided. Then the artillery regiment defiled in grand order, being led on by their band who played with good spirit and displayed a gigantic black drum-major.

We learn that some able speeches were made by General Gelly, the Peruvian Minister, General Mancilla, Dr. Costa, and some other, whose names if possible reproduce.

The statue is of bronze, and stands on a lofty pedestal, the general's hat being about 40 feet from the ground. The pose is very striking: the charger rears on his hind legs while the rider's right arm, fully extended, seems to indicate a position to be taken or movement to be executed. As a work of art, we hesitate to say that it will be a great ornament to our city although critics declare the horse's tail rather heavy, and the right index finger too long. The idea of public monuments is contagious, and we congratulate Buenos Ayres on the acquisition of the lasting tablet of patriotism, which will stand as a lesson to our rising generation. Happily this the first citizen so importunized presents us a noble effigy, whom all parties have united to honor. It will be remembered that Quiroza and Dorrego have at least one claim on the generous gratitude of Portenos in contributing to the statue of San Martin.

When political rivalries shall have passed away, and the errors of past governments have been forgotten, the splendid monument will remind all true Argentines that the greatest soldier has been commemorated in eternal bronze by the leaders of hostile administrations; and the ceremony of inauguration has fallen to General Mitre who regenerated and reunited the country of San Martin.

The New Loan

The answer of the Bank directors to the Minister of finance, is worthy of the institution which they represent.

The new loan of 6 millions forces it has been always regarded, even by the most obtuse financiers, as intended to prop, level value upon the paper of this Bank, and thus stop the evil which the fluctuations of its currency has been entailing upon us all for so many years.

Such been the manifest object of the loan, we must say that we were hardly prepared for the confident and gratuitous assertion of Sr. Herbal, that one of the principal benefits to be derived from the Bank [illegible] erected p[illegible].

Now, a great oppression prevails about town, that the more the Bank goes, the more the public loses:—an opportunity which and the sophistry of its directors w old be unable to remove. We regard it as anything but judicious to hold out such deceptive advantages to our public.

The loan, as proposed by the Ministry, is a sound, judicious monetary step, if transacted in a proper, business-like way. But now Ayres enjoys good credit [illegible] have no doubt it never could be more favourably negotiated than at the present period. Capitalists in Europe can find no good investment to-day, at 6 per cent less than par. The war in the United States has been the immediate cause of this, as all the English and German holders of American securities have long since sold out every share.

The Turkish loan which was introduced only a few months ago was manifestly for the same purpose as the present Buenos Ayres loan, it was done on most favorable terms.

Alluding Peter to pay Paul is an old adage but the idea of negotiating a 6 million hard dollar loan with the Casa de Moneda, would certainly be out of the fying pan into the fire.

Granted that the Bank agrees to take the loan at 10 p[illegible] mium where may we ask are they going to get the specie necessary, or have they the presumption to suppose that the Government will give them bonds representing on their very face specie, for their fluttering paper.

A loan sold on any thing like fair terms at home and bringing us back coin, will no doubt enable the Gov. to buy up the Bank paper until it serves to the proper figure with they require.

Then, by taking from both the Bank and the Executive the power of future emission, the value of the current paper dollars may be gradually raised, but any other mode of arranging this currency question would be attended with increased risk to the public and should be avoided, even though it deprives the Bank and its directors of reaping the increased profits which Sr. Herbal so naively refers to in his letter.

Departure of the Opera Company.

Colon is deserted, its doors closed and, like a wreck of mortality, its spirit of harmony has fled. M. Pestalozzi has exhausted patience and now appeals to an Oriental public for their verdict. The Lyric Company suffered immensely in Buenos Aires from double prices, and their departure has not been attended with any general demonstration. Yet, we shall begin to feel how much we have lost, during two or three long months of winter, when we shall hear no other nightly music than the cry of the "Soren s".

Unhappily our Portena friends have no taste (perhaps we should say talent) for singing, and the Athens of the River Plate will find itself ten times more stupid, of an evening, than the rudest hamlet in our own native Lotherland.

After a grand Parade [illegible] this is the brief catalogue of our woes, although Pestalozzi has moreover cut off [illegible] carried off the chorus, the musicians and even mantua-makers. The latter we could have spared: but where is the opera-goer who is not a canary of either Ritmer or Pestalozzi, and who does not regret the departure of our prima donna?

It is known to our readers that the Italian artistes in general to Montevideo, to give an abono during the holidays of Independence (July 18th.) Mollis Adelaide and give ["Norma", among the other pieces of her orchestra, and the Co. will remain a couple of months in that city. Meantime it is expected that the Orientals will receive them with enthusiasm, and [illegible] the Lyric Company about their return, as it is said Mme. Parodi's contract expires in September. We have however positive reasons to believe that our country woman will come [illegible]

At 2 P. M. the immediate friends of Mollis Adelaide met, at her rooms in the Roma Hotel, to signify their regret at her begira: they accompanied her to the wharf, and wished her a bon voyage, some of them taking care to see her safely aboard. Mme. Parodi and the other artistes had previously embarked for the Menay, which was preferable to the French packet as lying in the inner roads.

In bidding adieu to Mollis Alboni we have to wish her, crowded houses in the state-city, and a speedy return to her admirers in Buenos Ayres.

Editor's Table

The complaint of the householders in calle 25 de Mayo, against the stable-keepers, for breaking the flag-stones, vereda, &c, when driving their horses to the river, has elicited a rather lengthy refutation from these equestrian citizens. The owners of these Buenos Ayrean hippodromedery, in truth do seem to [illegible] ness, and that rather plainly that the complaint must emanate from the dreamy imagination of some clumsy gentleman.

The postmaster asserts that it is not his fault if the letters and newspapers for the French mail are delivered irregularly, assuring us that frequently the newspaper bag is left in Rio Janeyro by mistake, and the bag belonging to Rio brought here.

These excuses are proverbial for their politeness, but we have to thank the gentlemen in charge of the mails on board the Saintonge, for frequently receiving no papers at all.

We notice a just and commendable spirit of rivalry which has recently sprung up between our worthy French and English consuls. The matter in dispute is, which can make inconvenience the public, in the way of posting letters on the packet day. The French consul has recently removed his office out of the parish, and settled down in the vicinity of the San Martin statue. This is done, of course, to accommodate the foreigners; and we hear now that it is not at all unlikely that our British consul, rather than permit himself to be outdone by a Frenchman, intends locating his post-office in the new station of the end of the San Fernando railway, and sell postage stamps only on the day after the departure of the packet.

Consuls may be very useful in their way but their efforts, as far as postal regulations, are worse than useless, proofs of their anxiety to serve the Public. One gentleman shuts the door of his office on the steamer day and opens a 6 by 6 pigeon hole hardly big enough to admit a month's file of the "Standard" To augment the inconvenience, the clerks are seldom supplied with change, and at times seem very hard up both in the French and English Consulates for the change of a fifty dollar bill.

The condition of the old plaza last week particularly in front of Messrs Alleson and Malcolms stands, was worthy of our Municipal board: we witnessed the efforts of 4 lean bullocks to extricate an empty cart and we, from this scene of mud, plead guilty of having wished that instead of the poor bullock five or 6 of the tallest members of this board were yoked on to the cart, and we sitting on the perigo with the picador in one hand and arrear in the other.

Fearful atrocity.

Yesterday evening as a foreign woman was ridine along the Paseo Julio, his horse took fright at something, and owing to the bit being simply an English snaffle, the rider was unable to pull him up, on the moment. A soldier on guard at the Capitania shouted out to the poor fellow to stop, but whether it was that the man did not understand the sentry, or that he was positively unable to pull his horse in, we cannot say; but one thing is certain, that the infuriated soldier ran after him at full speed, and plunged his bayonet into the unfortunate animal, which died at once.

At the solicitation of several gentlemen who were present, Captain Soler ordered the soldier to be put under arrest; but the sergeant refused to comply with the order "until he had finished his dinner." However, after some delay the crowd of indignant spectators gave Mr Soler to understand that if the soldier was not arrested, they themselves would make him prisoner, and bring him to the Policia. He was thereupon immediately locked up.

The poor captain runs a great risk of his life, as all parties present insist that the ruffianly soldier tried to stab him, and merely missed the captain's leg, by a few inches.

Several parties on the beach have offered to come forward and give their evidence, and we hope that the British consul will condescend to look into the matter, and see that the soldier is punished, the captain compensated, & Mr Malcolm paid for the loss of his horse.

We are tired speaking of the great impropriety of the authorities permitting these soldiers to carry such deadly arms. We live in a city where popular riots are not unknown, and yet we are surrounded by armed vigilantes and policemen, just as if we were all a set of revolutionists.

If the soldier acted up to his orders, he deserves no blame, but we deny that any law exists which will justify a soldier in attempting to stab either a man or horse, for merely galloping before the door of a second-rate dignitary.

Tribunal of Commerce.

The attention of the Government has been called to the fact to the in-efficient state of this Tribunal, by a note from the President of the Chamber of Justice

New elections have been ordered to take place, but at the same time more serious measures have been proposed to remedy the existing evils and prevent them for the future.

The Government have addressed the following communication on the subject to the Provincial Legislature.

Buenos Ayres, July 12th 1862.

To the Provincial Chamber of Senators.

The special situation in which the Tribunal of Commerce is placed, obliges the Executive to call TY. HH. attention to it.

This Tribunal is the only one which has not followed the movement of the ever growi g necessities of the commerce and population of the country. The High Court of Justice, the Courts of Primera Instancia, have had an increase of members, while in the meantime the Tribunal of Commerce remains on the same footing, as under the ancient ordinances of Bilbao.

From this it happens that a large number of cases is decided by it; that the fulfilment of its duties imposed on the citizens appointed to perform them is very heavy, and may undoubtedly be considered the principal cause of the great difficulty which has ever been found in filling its vacancies.

Sample output to test PDF Combine only

There is at present pending before you, a bill which has already received the sanction of the Chamber of Deputies by which the present Tribunal is superseded by a Judge of Commerce. If YY. HH. in taking it into consideration, as the Executive trusts you will do, believe it at the Tribunal should be continued under its former popular form, so that the prescriptions of the recently adopted code could not be harmonized with the exception of one or two judiciary courts; it will be at least found necessary to double the number of its members, dividing this jurisdiction, giving to one Tribunal for example the decision of bankruptcies, a very special matter which requires an immediate and preferent attention, to prevent the injurious effects which commerce suffers from the indefinite prolongation of its awards), and should not this be enough, that part relating to maritime commerce; and the rest to the second.

May God preserve YY. HH.

BARTOLOMÉ MITRE
EDUARDO ACOSTA.

Necrology.

We have the great regret to chronicle the decease on Sunday a time of Colonel Arevalos, one of the most respectable gentlemen in the country.

Colonel Arevalos was the owner of the General of three steamers, the Iris of Paseo and other boats as well as a vessel Perú. He was the subject of the present moment distinguished himself as Chief Engineer throughout that campaign, and had the sad misfortune to lose his hearing from a discharge of artillery.

This calamity obliged him to retire from the military career, while yet a young man, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; he came to Buenos Aires where he devoted himself to his scientific studies. Shortly after he was made Chief of the Topographic Department, a post which he filled for about 20 years with the greatest assiduity and integrity, escaping on called the contaminating influence of Rosas' despotic rule.

His leisure hours were employed in preparing and giving to the public, the biography and campaigns of his father, his description of the Chaco, a rare and valuable book, besides several other works of not less importance.

The country has suffered a great loss by the death of one of its men of science, in times when such scholars are rare.

The American Cottons

The cultivation of this description of the Sea Island cotton diverged in all directions around Georgia as the common centre; it went north into the two Carolinas; it went west into the hill country of all the Southern States; it was found capable of adjusting itself to the soil and climate of the interior country, which the Augalla cotton had not been adapted to; still the fibre of the hairy or short staple cotton is better near the sea than in the interior. Above all, it is found to be most productive in alluvial soils that are a little touched with salt, as are some of the districts of Louisiana, where the rivers rising in the Rocky Mountains draw some of their waters through the salt and arid plains which separate the waters of the Arkansas from the waters of Red River, where those two varieties of cotton, and a cotton that is possibly a hybrid between them, have arrived at the greatest perfection. It was there that silk which are deeply tinged with red, and heavily stained with salt, which all the tributary streams of Red River flow, are from the south, bring with them a deposit of alluvial soil, which them, more forth the most abundant crops of the best quality of these descriptions of cotton.

Directing myself by the information received from one or two friends who have property there, I should say, with reasonable diligence and attention to the object, 1000 pounds of seed cotton or about 250 pounds of cotton wool may be expected to the English acre, while the average products of the hill lands, from the Mississippi to North Carolina, should not be taken at more than 500 pounds of seed cotton, or half the quantity; nor do I believe there is any material difference upon the great scale of products through this wide extent of country, judging for myself from personal observation, for I have passed through all these districts, yet scarcely a year passes without the newspapers announcing some new discovered land of peculiar wealth in these wide limits, themselves misled by some single or partial result, or stimulated on by land speculators, a curse of no common character to a new country. But in whatever course originating, the evil is the same. These rumours fall among a people already heated with a desire of change—a people quite sensible to present evils, but not reflective enough to hold in remembrance that every wave of the hand without necessity, an every moment of excitement of time without usefulness, is a waste of power and waste of time irreclaimable to humanity. The system of agriculture through all these districts is essentially the same. You find the Virginian upon Red River; you find the North Carolina man, the South Carolina man, and the man of Georgia, alongside of him; any improvements, any increased quantity of produce, by any new course of cultivation, spreads like the fire of the American prairie, a spark has carried it, and unbounded labor in advance of the mass of flame that rolls after it. Any substantial improvement, therefore, that is made in Virginia or Georgia from this extention of mind, from this intermingling of men, it as likely to be reflected back upon the intermediate country from Red River as to reach it from its first source.

LOCAL EVENTS.

GOVERNMENT SHIPS.—Tenders will be received for the rent of the following ships, at the Commissariat Department until the 15th inst, at 2 o'clock P. M.,

Brig "Cordova"

Schooner "San Juan Bautista".

Lugger "A G S".

OLD WINTER.—Has made his appearance at last, and set aside on Sunday at the inauguration of the statue of General San Martin. The festival on Sunday was very severe and lasted until about 7 o'clock A. M. accompanied with a piercing cold wind from the South.

25 DE MAYO.—News from this district announce an Indian invasion of 30 to 40 men who stole 2 or 3,000 mares. It was reported that troops were sent to the scene of disaster and consequently had no time to overtake the invaders.

THE ARGENTINE RACES.—These races came off on Sunday; the attendance was very small, but the luxuries of life appear to have been more abundant than in the Plaza Martin, at least, the sporting gentlemen came home in better spirits than those from the statue. We have not as yet heard the full particulars, but understand that the Changador was beaten in one accident, it appears, even to the last, running foul of the wires, everything, however passed off well, very little accidents.

GENERAL FLORES.—A letter to the "National", this gentleman, whose name is new to us, has been simultaneously elected Senator to Congress and Customs receiver for Corrientes. Which will he choose.?

CORDOBA RAILWAY.—This bill comes to-day before the Senate, for its last reading, and will probably pass without modification.

SOR. POSADAS.—Has been elected Provincial Deputy for Lobos and Navarro. If the capital project pass, his parliamentary career must be short-lived. SS.S Haedo and Toribio Varela have been returned for San Fernando and Las Conchas.

SUNDAY BATTLES.—The late terrible struggle at Pittsburg adds another, to the long list of Sunday battles. The facts are so clear in this and numerous other conflicts, and the results have been so uniform and decisive, that comment is not only warranted but demanded, alike by philosophy, patriotism, and piety. The general statement cannot be gain said, that the more important movements of the National forces, in the early stages of the present war, were made on Sunday, and that they were undeniable failures. Paterson's column was constantly notorious for its manœuvri g on Sunday, and for little else. Big Bethel, Bull Run, and Bull's Bluff were the great blunders and defeats of attacking armies on Sunday. All these engagements, excepting Bull's Bluff, under the now imprisoned General Some, preceded General McClellan's noble Sabbath order. Thenceforward the rebels have made the Sunday results, with invariable loss of the battles thus waged. Mill Spring opened their career of Sunday fighting, which closes with Pittsburg. The battle of Winchester was begun on Sunday morning. The first of these battles cost the rebels Kentucky; the second, the valley of Virginia; and the third the Mississipi Valley. The Merrimac, too, after its destructive Saturday's raid, ran amuck against the Monitor on Sunday, and has spent a month in repairing damages.—New York Times.

TUESDAY 15th JULY 1862.

Inauguration of San Martin's Statue

The war of Independence is the most memorable epoch in the history of South America: its struggles and reverses called forth all the energies of the patriot leaders, while its ultimate triumph produced a new order of things throughout the continent. Few of the great battles of the time were fought in the Argentine Confederation, and Ireland lent more swords to the rectification of Liberty, than either Buenos Ayres or Tucuman. Simon Bolivar left but a moiety of glory to be shared among the associate heroes; hence San Martin is but little known out of the immediate scene of his exploits. O'Higgins, Miller and O'Brien in Chili, Cochrane in Peru, O'Connor in Bolivia, Moran in New Granada, all distinguished themselves in the same manner, but their names are as little known in this city as that of Belgrano is in Dublin.

Yet the triumph of the great cause is a patrimony common to all Hispano American republics, and Buenos Ayres has testified her gratitude to the patriot-fathers, in erecting a splendid monument to her own valiant soldier, who occupies an honorable place in the Pantheon of Fame. The hero of Maypu and Chacabuco contributed, in an eminent degree, to the emancipation from the Spanish yoke; but like the Liberator, Bolivar, he was rewarded with ingratitude, and banished his native country. During a wearisome old age, he had the misery to see his efforts for freedom rendered profitless; and, dying on a foreign shore, he had no glimpse of the new day which was to dawn on La Plata, when his spirit had basked in the sunshine of Eternity.

Sunday, July 13th, was fixed by the Government for the inauguration of the colossal equestrian figure which is destined to commemorate the Argentine protector-in-fain. The day was very unpleasant, from excessive cold and blinding volumes of dust; yet such interest was awakened by this tardy testimonial to the hero of Independence, that the Plaza Marto was crowded with an immense assemblage of spectators. The fair sex, with accustomed reverence for warlike celebrities, mustered in strong numbers, and lent an attraction to the scene, which even seated for the absence of better arrangements and finer weather. The hour appointed was 1 p.m, but the President and Ministers must have arrived some hour earlier, for when we reached the Plaza Marto the statue was already uncovered. A cordon of artillery was drawn around the statue, at the foot of which was a small platform in the centre were General Mitre, Dr. Costa, General Gelly & other dignitaries who were surrounded by a few well dressed civilians & a crowd of little boys. We could not get admission to the platform, where the place, which in other countries is assigned to the Press, was held up by noisy urchins. This was a bad arrangement for, whereas we would have sent the speeches of the orators, on this memorable occasion, flying to the four winds of heaven, to be reecho'd in Europe and the United States, the little boys, so favored by mistake, prevented even the nearest bystanders from hearing a syllable of the enthusiastic discourses.

General Mitre made a fine oration (we suppose), and was followed by a military gentleman, who waved his sword in the air, suiting his action to some brilliant apostrophe, but it was all dumbshow. After a delay of some minutes, the gentlemen descended the platform, the band struck up a martial strain, the veterans of Independence formed under their historic banner which was borne by Colonel Conde, the procession was formed, and all marched off to the Retiro barrack, where (we suspect) a collation was provided. Then the artillery regiment defiled in grand order, being headed by the band who played with good spirit and displayed a gigantic black drum-major.

We learn that some able speeches were made by General Gelly, the Peruvian Minister, General Mancilla, Dr. Costa, and some other, whose names if possible reproduce.

The statue is of bronze, and stands on a lofty pedestal, the general's hat being about 40 feet from the ground. The pose is very striking: the charger rears on his hind legs while the rider's right arm, fully extended, seems to indicate a position to be taken or movement to be executed. As a work of art, we hesitate to say that it will be an great ornament to our city although criticises declare the horse's tail rather heavy, and the right index finger too long. The idea of public monuments is contemptible, yet we congratulate Buenos Aires on the acquisition of this lasting tablet of patriotism, which will stand as a lesson to our rising generation. Happily this the first citizen so importunized presents us a noble effigy, whom all parties have united to honor. It will be remembered that Quiroza and Dorrego have at least one claim on the generous gratitude of Portenos in contributing to the statue of San Martin.

When political rivalries shall have passed away, and the errors of past governments have been forgotten, the splendid monument will remind all true Argentines that the patriot soldier has been commemorated in eternal bronze by the leaders of hostile administrations; and the ceremony of inauguration has fallen to General Mitre who regenerated and reunited the country of San Martin.

The New Loan

The answer of the Bank directors to the Minister of finance, is worthy of the institution which they represent.

The new loan of 6 millions forces has been always regarded, even by the most obtuse financiers, as intended to pump Coal value upon the paper of this Bank, and thus stop the evil which the fluctuations of its currency has been entailing upon us all for so many years.

Such been the manifest object of the loan, we must say that we were hardly prepared for the confident and gratuitous assertion of Sr. Herbal, that one of the principal benefits to be derived from the Bank [illegible] erected p[illegible]

Now, a great oppression prevails about town, that the moment the Bank goes, the more the public loses: — an opportunity which and the sophistry of its directors we old be unable to remove. We regard it as anything but judicious to hold out such deceptive advantages to our public.

The Bank, as proposed by the Minister, is a sound, patriotic monetary step, if transacted in a proper, business-like way. Buenos Ayres enjoys good credit and the London Exchange, and we have no doubt it never could be more favourably negotiated than at the present period. Capitalists in Europe can find no good investment to-day, at 6 per cent less than par. The war in the United States has been the immediate cause of this, as all the English and German holders of American securities have long since sold out every share.

The Turkish loan which was introduced only a few months ago was manifestly for the same purpose as the present Buenos Ayrean, it was done on most favorable terms.

In taking Peter to pay Paul is an old adage but the idea of negotiating a 6 million hard dollar loan with the Casa de Moneda, would certainly be out of the fying pan into the fire.

Granted that the Bank agrees to take the loan at 10 p£ premium where may we ask are they going to get the specie necessary, or have they the presumption to suppose that the Government would give them bonds representing on their very face specie, for their fluttering paper.

A loan sold on any thing like fair terms at home and bringing us back coin, will no doubt enable the Gov. to buy up the Bank paper until it serves to the proper figure which they require.

Then, by taking from both the Bank and the Executive the power of future emission, the value of the current paper dollars must be instantly raised. But not any other mode of arranging this currency question would be attended with increased risk to the public and should be avoided, even though it deprives the Bank and its directors of reaping the increased profits which Sr. Herbal so naively refers to in his letter.

Departure of the Opera Company.

Colon is deserted, its doors closed and, like a wreck of mortality, its spirit of harmony has fled. M. Pestalozzi has exhausted patience and now appeals to an Oriental public for their verdict. The Lyric Company suffered immensely in Buenos Aires from double prices, and their departure has not been attended with any general demonstration. Yet, we shall begin to feel how much we have lost, during two or three long months of winter, when we shall hear no other nightly music than the cry of the "Soren s".

Unhappily our Portena friends have no taste (perhaps we should say talent) for singing, and the Athens of the River Plate will find itself ten times more stupid, of an evening, than the rudest hamlet in our own native Fatherland.

After a grand Parade [illegible] this is the brief catalogue of our woes, although Pestalozzi has moreover left on full charge", carried off the chorus, the musicians and even mantua-maker. The latter we could have spared: but where is the opera-goer who is not a canary of either Zitmer or Pestalozzi, and who does not regret the departure of our prima donna?

It is known to our readers that the Italian artistes in general to Montevideo, to give an abono during the holidays of Independence (July 18th.) Mollis Adelaide and give ["Norma", among the other pieces of her cortello, and the Co. will remain a couple of months in that city. Meantime it is expected that the Orientals will receive them with enthusiasm, and [illegible] Mme. Parodi's contract expires on the 28th inst. We have however positive reasons to believe that our country woman will come [illegible]

At 2 P. M. the immediate friends of Mollis Adelaide met, at her rooms in the Rosas Hotel, to signify their regret at her begira: they accompanied her to the wharf, and wished her a bon voyage, some of them taking care to see her safely aboard. Mme. Parodi and the other artistes had previously embarked for the Menay, which was preferable to the French packet as lying in the inner roads.

In bidding adieu to Mollis Alteri we have to add her, crowded houses in the state-cavity, and a speedy return to her admirers in Buenos Ayres.

Editor's Table

The complaint of the householders in calle 25 de Mayo, against the stable-keepers, for breaking the flag-stones, vereda, &c, when driving their horses to the river, has elicited a rather lengthy refutation from these equestrian citizens. The owners of these Buenos Ayrean hippodromedery, in truth the accusers also, and that rather plainly that the complaint must emanate from the dreamy imagination of some clumsy gentleman.

The postmaster asserts that it is not his fault if the letters and newspapers for the French mail are delivered irregularly, assuring us that frequently the newspaper bag is left in Rio Janeyro by mistake, and the bag belonging to Rio brought here.

These letters are proverbial for their politeness, but we have to thank the gentlemen in charge of the mails on board the Saintonge, for frequently receiving no papers at all.

We notice a just and commendable spirit of rivalry which has recently sprung up between our worthy French and English consuls. The matter in dispute is, which can make inconvenience the public, in the way of packing letters on the packet day. The French consul has recently removed his office out of the parish, and settled down in the vicinity of the San Martin statue. This is done, of course, to accommodate the foreigners; and we learn now that it is not at all unlikely that our British consul, rather than permit himself to be outdone by a Frenchman, intends locating his post-office in the new station-house of the San Fernando railway, and sell postage stamps only on the day after the departure of the packet.

Consuls may be very useful in their way but their efforts, as far as postal regulations, are worthy of no other proofs of their anxiety to serve the Public. One gentleman shuts the door of his office on the steamer day and opens a 6 by 6 pigeon hole hardly big enough to admit a month's file of the "Standard" To augment the inconvenience, the clerks are seldom supplied with change, and at times seem very hard up both in the French and English Consulates for the change of a fifty dollar bill.

The condition of the old plaza last week particularly in front of Messrs Alleson and Malcolms stands, was worthy of our Municipal board: we witnessed the efforts of 4 lean bullocks to extricate an empty cart and we, from this scene of mud, plead guilty of having wished that instead of the poor bullock five or 6 of the tallest members of this board were yoked on to the cart, and we sitting on the perigo with the picador in one hand and arrear in the other.

Fearful atrocity.

Yesterday evening as a foreign woman was ridine along the Paseo Julio, his horse took fright at something, and owing to the bit being simply an English snaffle, the rider was unable to pull him up, on the moment. A soldier on guard at the Capitania shouted out to the poor fellow to stop, but whether it was that the man did not understand the sentry, or that he was positively unable to pull his horse in, we cannot say; but one thing is certain, that the infuriated soldier ran after him at full speed, and plunged his bayonet into the unfortunate animal, which died at once.

At the solicitation of several gentlemen who were present, Captain Soler ordered the soldier to be put under arrest; but the sergeant refused to comply with the order "until he had finished his dinner." However, after some delay the crowd of indignant spectators gave Mr Soler to understand that if the soldier was not arrested, they themselves would make him prisoner, and bring him to the Policia. He was thereupon immediately locked up.

The poor captain runs a great risk of his life, as all parties present insist that the ruffianly soldier tried to stab him, and merely missed the captain's leg, by a few inches.

Several parties on the beach have offered to come forward and give their evidence, and we hope that the British consul will condescend to look into the matter, and see that the soldier is punished, the captain compensated, & Mr Malcolm paid for the loss of his horse.

We are tired speaking of the great impropriety of the authorities permitting these soldiers to carry such deadly arms. We live in a city where popular riots are of frequent occurrence and yet we are surrounded by armed vigilantes and policemen, just as if we were all a set of revolutionists.

If the soldier acted up to his orders, he deserves no blame, but we deny that any law exists which will justify a soldier in attempting to stab either a man or horse, for merely galloping before the door of a second-rate dignitary.

Tribunal of Commerce.

The attention of the Government has been called to the state of the in-efficient state of this Tribunal, by a note from the President of the Chamber of Justice

New elections have been ordered to take place, but at the same time more serious measures have been proposed to remedy the existing evils and prevent them for the future.

The Government have addressed the following communication on the subject to the Provincial Legislature.

Buenos Ayres, July 12th 1862.

To the Provincial Chamber of Senators.

The special situation in which the Tribunal of Commerce is placed, obliges the Executive to call TY. HH. attention to it.

This Tribunal is the only one which has not followed the movement of the ever growi g necessities of the commerce and population of the country. The High Court of Justice, the Courts of Primera Instancia, have had an increase of members, while in the meantime the Tribunal of Commerce remains on the same footing, as under the ancient ordinances of Bilbao.

From this it happens that a large number of cases is decided by it; that the fulfilment of its duties imposed on the citizens appointed to perform them is very heavy, and may undoubtedly be considered the principal cause of the great difficulty which has ever been found in filling its vacancies.

There is at present pending before you, a bill which has already received the sanction of the Chamber of Deputies by which the present Tribunal is superseded by a Judge of Commerce appointed by a Judge of Instance. If YY. HH. in taking it into consideration, as the Executive trusts you will do, believe it at the Tribunal should be continued under its former popular form, so that the prescriptions of the recently adopted code could not be harmonized with the creation of one or two judiciary courts; it will be at least found necessary to double the number of its members, dividing this jurisdiction, giving to one Tribunal for example the decision of bankruptcies, a very special matter which requires an immediate and preferent attention, to prevent the injurious effects which commerce suffers from the indefinite prolongation of its awards), and should not this be enough, that part relating to maritime commerce; and the rest to the second.

May God preserve YY. HH.

BARTOLOMÉ MITRE
EDUARDO ACOSTA.

Necrology.

We have the great regret to chronicle the decease on Sunday a time of Colonel Arredondo, one of the most respectable gentlemen in the country.

Colonel Arredondo was the son of the General of that name, the hero of Passo and other battles in Bolivia and Perú. He was the subject of the present month to distinguish his bravery. Chief he gained throughout that campaign, and had the singular misfortune to lose his hearing from a discharge of artillery.

This calamity obliged him to retire from the military career, while yet a young man, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; he came to Buenos Aires where he devoted himself to his scientific studies. Shortly after he was made Chief of the Topographic Department, a post which he filled for about 20 years with the greatest assiduity and integrity, escaping on called the contaminating influence of Rosas' despotic rule.

His leisure hours were employed in preparing and giving to the public, the bi graphy and campaigns of his father, his description of the Chaco, a rare and valuable book, besides several other works of not less importance.

The country has suffered a great loss by the death of one of its men of science, in times when such scholars are rare.

The American Cottons

The cultivation of this description of the Sea Island cotton diverged in all directions around Georgia as the common centre; it went north into the two Carolinas; it went west into the hill country of all the Southern States; it was found capable of adjusting itself to the soil and climate of the interior country, which the Augailla cotton had not been adapted to; still the fibre of the hairy or short staple cotton is better near the sea than in the interior. Above all, it is found to be most productive in alluvial soils that are a little touched with salt, as are some of the districts of Louisiana, where the rivers rising in the Rocky Mountains draw some of their waters through the salt and arid plains which separate the waters of the Arkansas from the waters of Red River, where those two varieties of cotton, and a cotton that is possibly a hybrid between them, have arrived at the greatest perfection. It was there that silk which are deeply tinged with red, and heavily stained with salt, which mix the tributary streams of Red River, flowing in from the north, bring with them, more forth the most abundant crops of the best quality of these descriptions of cotton.

Directing myself by the information received from one or two friends who have property there, I should say, with reasonable diligence and attention to the object, 1000 pounds of seed cotton or about 250 pounds of cotton wool may be expected to the English acre, while the average products of the hill lands, from the Mississippi to North Carolina, should not be taken at more than 500 pounds of seed cotton, or half the quantity; nor do I believe there is any material difference upon the great scale of products through this wide extent of country, judging for myself from personal observation, for I have passed through all these districts, yet scarcely a year passes without the newspapers announcing some new discovered land of peculiar wealth; these wide limits, themselves misled by some single or partial result, or stimulated on by land speculators, a curse of no common character to a new country But in whatever course originating, the evil is the same. These rumours fall among a people already heated with a desire of change—a people quite sensible to present evils, but not reflective enough to hold in remembrance that every wave of the hand without necessity, an every moment my excitement of time without usefulness, is a waste of power and waste of time irreclaimable to humanity. The system of agriculture through all these districts is essentially the same. You find the Virginia upon Red River; you find the North Carolina man, the South Carolina man, and the man of Georgia, alongside of king very improvements, any increased quantity of product, by any new course of cultivation, spreads like the fire of the American prairie, a spark has carried it, and unbounded labor in advance of the mass of flame that rolls after it. Any substantial improvement, therefore, that is made in Virginia or Georgia from this extention of mind, from this intermingling of men, it as likely to be reflected back upon the intermediate country from Red River as to reach it from its first source.

LOCAL EVENTS.

GOVERNMENT SHIPS.—Tenders will be received for the rent of the following ships, at the Commissariat Department until the 15th inst, at 2 o'clock P. M.,

Brig "Cordova"

Schooner "San Juan Bautista".

Lugger "A G e".

OLD WINTER.—Has made his appearance at last, and set aside on Sunday at the inauguration of the statue of General San Martin. The festival on Sunday was very severe and lasted until about 7 o'clock A. M. accompanied with a piercing cold wind from the South.

25 DE MAYO.—News from this district announce an Indian invasion of 30 to 40 men who stole 2 or 3,000 horses. It was reported that troops were sent to the scene of disaster and consequently had no time to overtake the invaders.

THE ARGENTINE RACES.—These races came off on Sunday; the attendance was very small, but the luxuries of life appear to have been more abundant than in the Plaza Martin; at least, the sporting gentlemen came home in better spirits than those from the statue We have not as yet heard the full particulars, but understand that the Changador was beaten from excellent, it appears, even to the last running but of the whole, everything however passed off well, very little no fey clay hands.

GENERAL FLORES.—A letter to the "National", this gentleman, whose name is new to us, has been simultaneously elected Senator to Congress and Customs receiver for Corrientes. Which will he choose.?

CORDOBA RAILWAY.—This bill comes to-day before the Senate, for its last reading, and will probably pass without modification.

SOR. POSADAS.—Has been elected Provincial Deputy for Lobos and Navarro. If the capital project pass, his parliamentary career must be short-lived. SS. Haedo and Toribio Varela have been returned for San Fernando and Las Conchas.

SUNDAY BATTLES.—The late terrible struggle at Pittsburg adds another, to the long list of Sunday battles. The facts are so clear in this and numerous other conflicts, and the results have been so uniform and decisive, that comment is not only warranted but demanded, alike by philosophy, patriotism, and piety. The general statement cannot be gain said, that the more important movements of the National forces, in the early stages of the present war, were made on Sunday, and that they were undeniable failures. Paterson's column was constantly notorious for its manœuvri g on Sunday, and for little else. Big Bethel, Bull Run, and Ball's Bluff were the great blunders and defeats of attacking armies on Sunday. All these engagements, excepting Ball's Bluff, under the now imprisoned General Some, preceded General McClellan's noble Sabbath order. Thenceforward the rebels have made the Sunday results, with invariable loss of the battles thus waged. Mill Spring opened their career of Sunday fighting, which closes with Pittsburg. The battle of Winchester was begun on Sunday morning. The first of these battles cost the rebels Kentucky; the second, the valley of Virginia; and the third the Mississipi Valley. The Merrimac, too, after its destructive Saturday's raid, ran amuck against the Monitor on Sunday, and has spent a month in repairing damages.—New York Times.
